When the Soil refuses to yield; -

DR. BRADFORD KNAFF -

"Has long advocated a system for Southern farmers, which we have called Safe Farming. By safe farming we mean a system which provides food for the people and feed for the livestock of the South; which maintains our soil fertility and then devotes a reasonable acreage to the production of cash crops to be sold in the markets of the world.

"Safe farming presumes an income for the farmer not from one crop but dependent upon a number of well chosen products of the farm, livestock as well as crops, making a better balanced agriculture, a safer system, and a better rural life. I am firmly convinced that the farmers of the South ought to change as they have changed in the past few years until they reach a substantial basis which I have endeavored to describe as Safe Farming."
